Freedom

The bishops of the United States are again asking us to celebrate the "Fortnight for Freedom" this year. This is first and foremost a spiritual effort, not a political one. The benefits of religious freedom (namely, recognition of natural rights of religious practice and of conscience, of the right to live one's faith in a consistent way in daily life, of the just limits of government power, of the priority of certain moral realities to civil law, etc.) are for all, and the loss of religious freedom affects all. We therefore engage in this effort in a spirit of prayer, solidarity, and atonement for the sins of our country against human freedom.

Throughout the 14 days from June 21 to July 4, we are also asked to fast and pray, and to encourage all our parishioners to fast and pray, for our country and for the defense of religious freedom during these two weeks. "Fasting" here means any pious act of self-denial, with the intention of joining that to the merits of Christ. It could be, for example, similar to the Ash Wednesday and Good Friday fasting, or it could be abstaining from meat, or from dessert, or the like, on certain days. In terms of prayers, Bishop Nickless particularly recommends the Rosary; and since, in so many of our parishes, there are many who so diligently and devoutly pray the Rosary before Mass and on their own, they can easily be encouraged to offer at least some of these prayers for this intention.
